

1. Match the following kanji for the days of the week with the appropriate reading.

月	_____	getsu (-yoobi)
木	_____	ka (-yoobi)
水	_____	sui (-yoobi)
金	_____	moku (-yoobi)
火	_____	kin (-yoobi)
日	_____	do (-yoobi)
土	_____	nichi (-yoobi)

2. What language do they speak in the following countries? Place the following languages in the appropriate spots on the map.

3. Which kamoku are they? Choose the correct answer from the list on the right.

 (a)	$5 + 14 = 19$ $3/5 - 1/10 = 1/2$ $135 \times 24 = 3260$ (b)	2500 BC 1776 Y2K (c)	(a) ちり chi ri (b) すうがく su u ga ku (c) れきし re ki shi
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	----------------------------------------------------------------------------	------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

4. Circle the words that fall under the category of kamoku (かもく).

eigo tamago rekishi sushi
 ongaku mizu tsukue suugaku

5. Japanese school students have different subjects at different times every day of the week. During breaks teachers rotate classrooms while students remain in the same classroom.

6. Patterson's schedule:

Write the letter of the subject under the correct day of the week.

月 火 水 木 金
 d c d , a c b

- | | | | |
|-------------|------------|-------------|-----------|
| (a) rekishi | (b) ongaku | (c) suugaku | (d) chiri |
|-------------|------------|-------------|-----------|

7. Japanese use katakana for those special words that come from English and other (non-Japanese) languages.

8. Match the hiragana with its katakana counterpart.

ウ カ キ へ リ
 き り う か へ

9. Japanese advertisers use katakana to get people's attention.