

1. Match the following states with their respective weather:

New York	hate	(はれ)
Colorado	ame	(あめ)
California	kumori	(くもり)
Florida	yuki	(ゆき)

2. In the skit, what does the weather man (Tim-sensei) say about the weather in the following places? Answer in roomaji.

Atlanta	ame
Tennessee	yuki
Florida	hare

3. In Japan, li tenki desu-ne is not just a comment on the weather but virtually a greeting, like “Hi. How are you doing?” When the weather is miserable, people say, lya-na tenki desu-ne.

4. When asking about the weather, what would you say?

Tenki-wa do desu-ka?

5. Trace the following katakana.

タ      チ      ツ      テ      ト

6. Write the appropriate hiragana and / or katakana in the boxes below.

ク	リ	ス	テ	イ	一	さ	ん
ku		su	ti		i	sa	n

7. Circle the correct answers for (a) and (b). Fill in the blanks for (c).

(a) The word for “but” between two sentences is kedo / demo ] .

The word for “but” at the beginning of a sentence is [ kedo / demo ] .

(b) Both to and sorekara mean “and.”

Which one connects two nouns?      [ to / sorekara ]

Which one connects two sentences?      [ to / sorekara ]

(c) You want to say, “Japanese is fun and interesting.” What would you say?

Nihongo-wa tanoshii desu. Sorekara, omoshiroi desu.