

Photosynthesis

Interrupted

Written By Greyson
Lee

Illustrated By Greyson
Lee

One bright, sunny day...

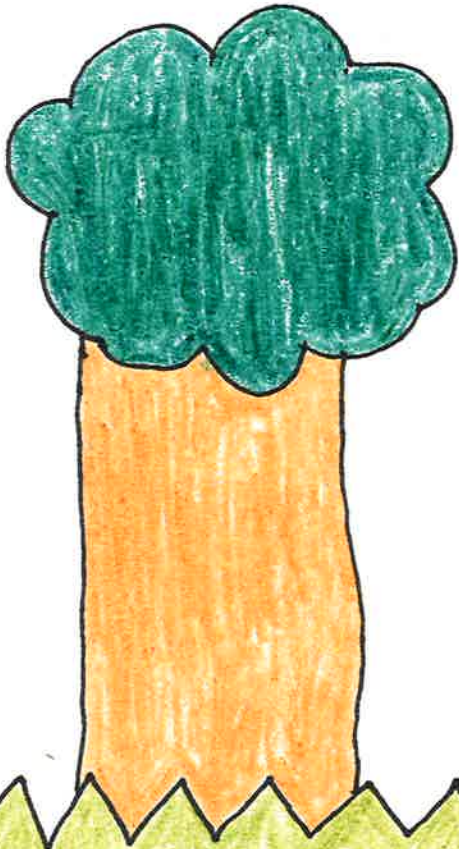

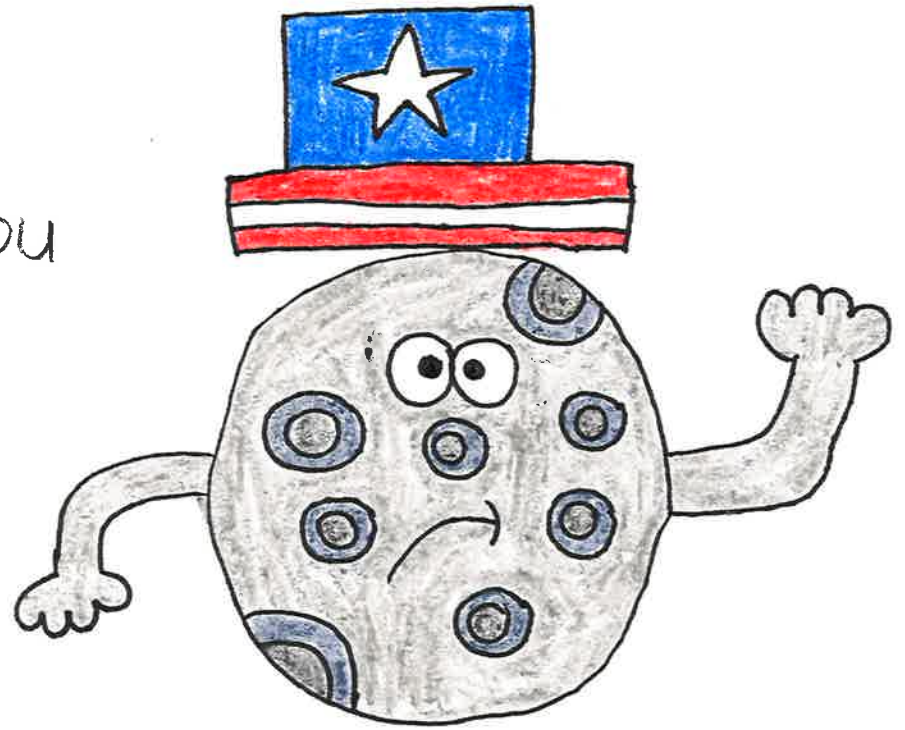

Oakly watched the sky suddenly turn very dark. "I'm a tree. I need sunlight to make my own food," he thought.

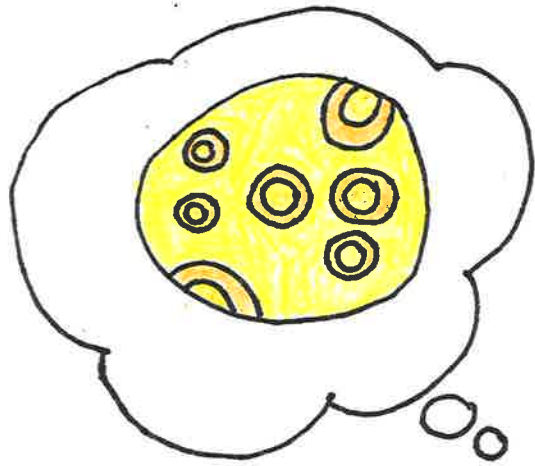

Oakly looked up,

"Lunarous, why are you blocking the sun?"

Lunarous replied sadly,
"I want my own light
just like the sun."

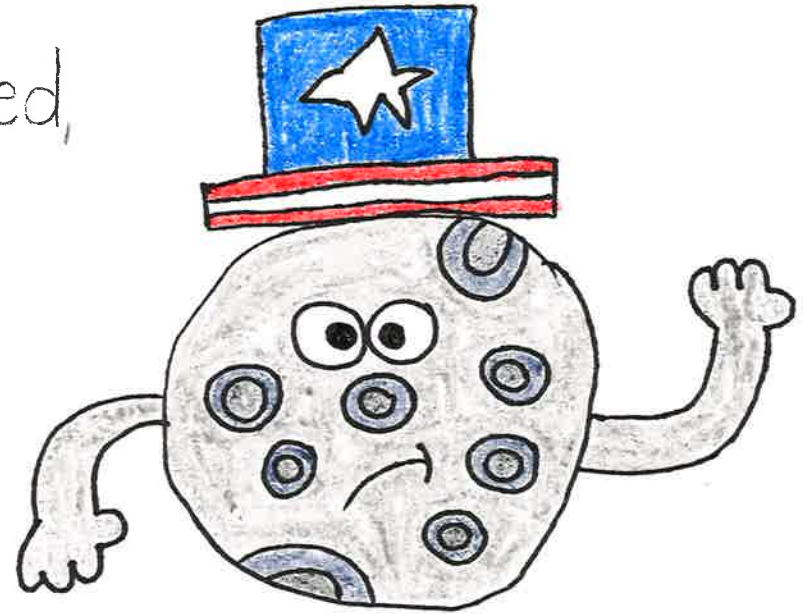

Oakly knew Lunarous needed to be moved quickly because photosynthesis is necessary for life. Oakly decided to launch some mice into space because in his mind, the moon was a sphere of cheese.

When those mice landed,

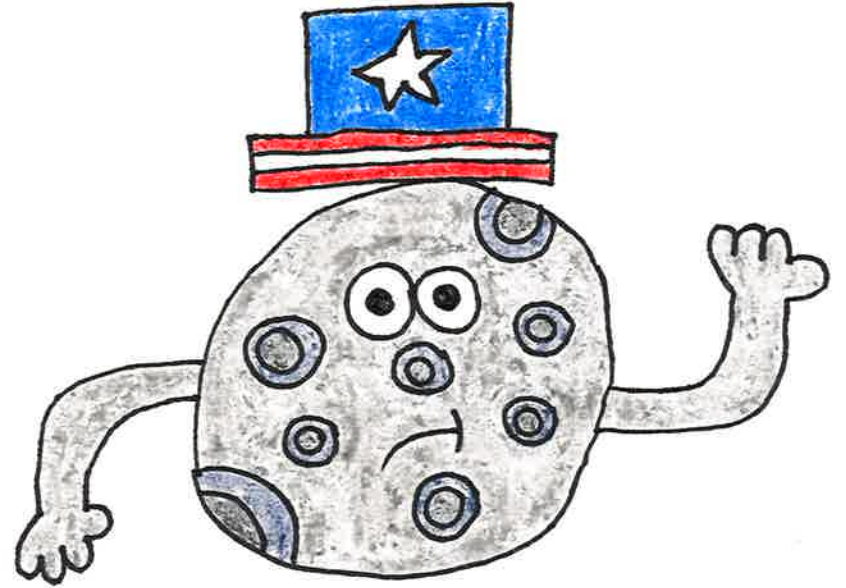

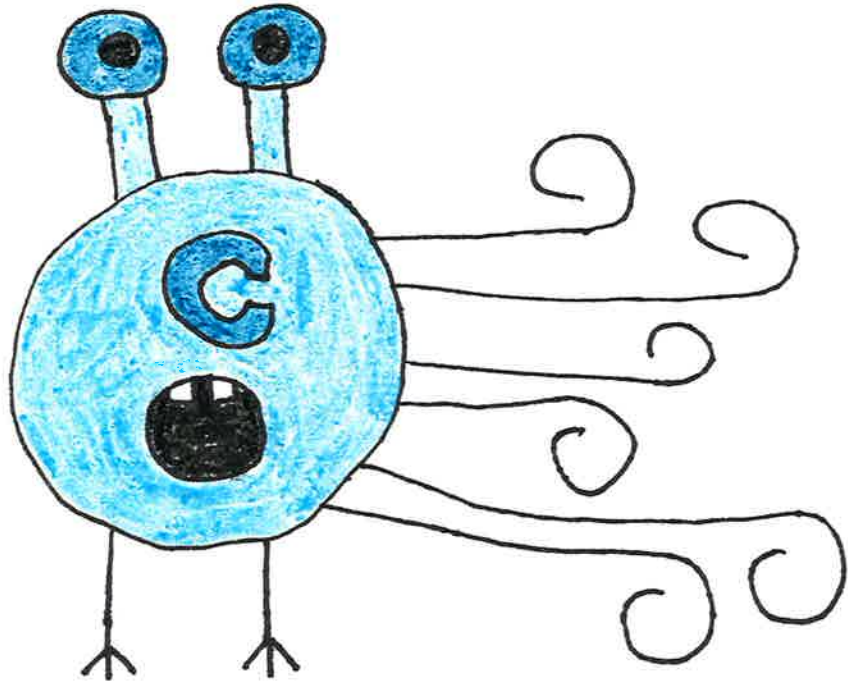

they discovered the moon was actually made of rocks.

Then Oakly heard Carbon Dee's
loud voice,

"I just thought of an idea! Maybe I could blow the moon
out of the way."

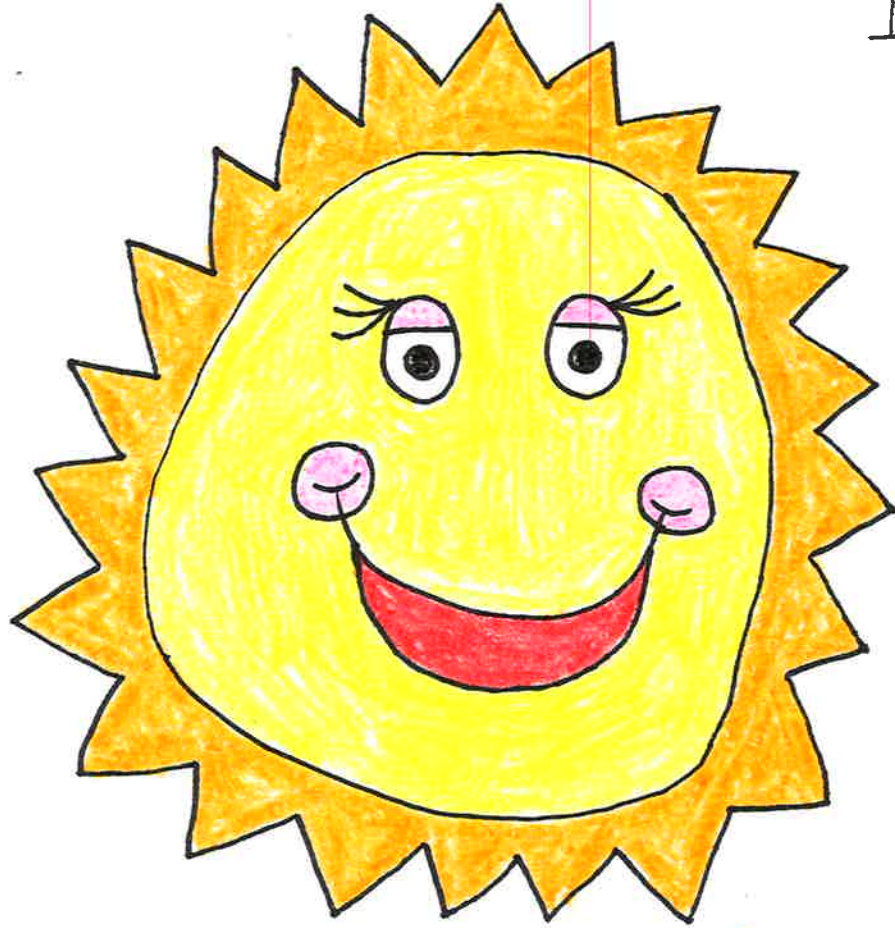

So he huffed, and he puffed, but he couldn't blow Lunarous back into orbit. "Lunarous didn't move, my plan failed badly."

Sonny screamed across the solar system,

"I know you want
your own light,

so I could make you a my extra light.

lantern using some of How about that?"

Lunamous replied, "You're so generous!

I appreciate it.

I promise I'll only block your light during a solar eclipse."

From then on, every single plant in the forest was able to do their photosynthesis.

